Farewell
United States Western Territory.

Colonel and Mrs. Turner Appointed Chief Secretaries to Newly Formed United States Western Territory with Headquarters at San Francisco.

IN my humble judgment the secret of Colonel Turner's success as a Salvation Army Officer lies in his unswerving devotion to the truth as he sees it. He is a man of high character, a true Christian, a splendid comrade, and an ideal Salvation Army Officer, worthy to be honored by all and emulated by all Salvationists, especially the young.

W. E. WHITE, Staff-Captain.

Some Striking Tributes

FROM MEMBERS OF THE TERRITORIAL HEADQUARTERS STAFF

AS has been inferred elsewhere, space does not permit us to publish even extracts from the many addresses of appreciation. This being so, we have secured tributes from officers in a representative capacity.

THE Young People of the Territory most assuredly owe a debt of gratitude to our far-reaching Chief Secretary. The Y.P.S.-M. days conducted by the Colonel were at all times fraught with much blessing and inspiration, and recollections of these seasons of help today with many of our young people. The Colonel's spirit of self-sacrifice and his vision of the future of the Territory, and many will agree to commend his example.

God bless Colonel and Mrs. Turner and prosper them in all their ways, and the prayer of Canada West Young People.

ERNEST SIMS, Major.

Territorial Young People's Secretary.

THE Finance Department has, perhaps, benefited as much as any section of the Territorial Headquarters by the close oversight and interest of the Chief Secretary, and our appreciation of this interest is very keen and sincere. The Colonel has made a very lasting impression, not only upon the Finance Department, but upon the personnel. His disinterestedness, his generosity, his selflessness, his eagerness to serve, will always be an inspiration to us.

Others may come and go, but Colonel Turner will ever hold a unique place in our lives.

S. E. Cox, Accountant.

ADJUTANT Dunkley said, "Comrade," and as we were privileged to be there last year, disguised as Y.P. representatives, it took just one tick of the clock to accept. "You there any assistants to pick?" "Yes, right at the Camp." Doubts incentive. A long hard winter's ahead.

"Ten minutes from the east line, and in Charles Jackson's lovely little grove, there notified the Camp. I saw the children off for some time, but before we arrived the kiddies were on hand to greet us, and instead of a two volunteers to help us pick they stepped forward to a man, just like a British form home, and we were away and back in a short time, with pulls full.

"I round their open-air table they gathered for the evening meal, with father and 'mother' coring at either end. We sat and ate, and along with it, had heaven as they sang their grove, with every eye closed. It was good to note their neatness and training and, bare feet and all, their neatness of dress. Father said to see the team work. It wasn't 'Nay' can't you pass those sandwiches? But, rather, 'O'fense, may Mary have another helping?' 'Nay, they got it all the Marys, and Willie, too. I'll the plate were well cleaned off—no goodly plate from the big man. And when they were through, thanks were given, as devoutly as by any given group.

Education, in the Christian sense, is truly overvalued: childhood preparing for maturity, maturity for age, and the whole life for duty and heaven.

—M. H. H.

ON this, the eve of the departure of a tower of strength to her husband, Colonel and Mrs. Turner, we cannot refrain from expressing how much we regret their leaving Canada West. Surely those who know them best can appreciate their service, most and those who have served under them the largest love them most.

Speaking on behalf of the Trade Department, there was no one more deeply interested in it, no one so loyal, so far, or talked more of its possible development. The Colonel is an optimist and has vision. Frequently he would speak of what he hoped the Department would become in the near future, not from a selfish motive, but because it was a little part of a great cause for which he lived and served.

The Trade Department wishes our Chief Secretary God-speed and heaven's richest blessing as they go from us, and assure them that we will endeavor to follow their example.

STAFF-CAPTAIN COSLING,
Trade Secretary.

ONE never thinks of Colonel Turner but they are reminded of a man full of business, who keeps at it from early morning until late at night, having a broad vision, with a capacity to grasp vital things first, and with an extraordinary optimistic outlook; yet never too engrossed but that he always manages to find time to assist his comrades, both at Headquarters and on the field.

Mrs. Turner has also shown herself to be a well-tried and faithful Officer

Colonel has always been a welcome visitor to the Training School; his lectures were always of the most helpful and instructive character.

His going from the Canadian Field will soon be a matter of history, but the influence of his untiring self, his optimism and standards of service, I am sure, has stamped itself indelibly on the hearts of all who have been fortunate to come under his dominating character, and I am pleased to pay this well-earned tribute to him; others will speak of him from the different angles of his successful Army career. God speed the Colonel.

G. L. PHILLIPS, Brigadier,
Principal.

It was with the deepest sense of regret that I first received the news of the farewell of Colonel and Mrs. Turner. Ever since my coming to the Western Territory, three years ago, they have both proved their thought and arms for us, not in words only, but in deeds. The Colonel, in spite of his mind being filled with a multitude of other matters, always took time to discuss questions relative either to Home or to Officers, and I believe always tried to do the best possible for us.

Mrs. Turner's practical assistance and cheery smile will be missed at Grace Hospital. Her interest in the League of Mercy was also appreciated. We shall miss them, and we wish them every blessing in their new appointment.

NANNIE B. POTTER,
Brigadier,
Women's Social Secretary.

AS I am taking my departure for my new appointment, I wish to say that the Men's Social Department owes a great debt of gratitude to Colonel Turner. Always interested in the spiritual and temporal welfare of the men, he was a frequent visitor at the Institutions, and his advice and help have been of innumerable benefit to the men in the department. We shall always remember both Colonel and Mrs. Turner in our prayers.

W. PEACOCK, Major.

A Happy Family Scene

Verily, verily, I say unto you, whosoever committeth sin is the servant of sin.—John viii:34.

No, no shepherds' crooks, nor pipkins on futes—there are better things to do, camp to be kept in order, beds made, faces washed, water to carry, meals to get, mending and patching, brushes to kiss and anoint and alms to come, and so very much more.

We tore ourselves away, but not before some were already in bed. I wonder if they knew Stevenson's rhyme:

One thing we know—there is contentment in the flock, and better, for we saw the Adjutant's class call for the strength of little arms and the smother of many kisses. We wept the children, or do they teach us? Honestly, I believe we are their debtors.

Oh, those tears from home and from heaven, that we can give, I know how much I miss! And I know how much I miss!

Someone has said that childhood is like a mirror, which reflects in after life the images of the past. Which is another way of putting Proverbs xlii. Children entrusted to Salvation Army Home may not lack any good thing in the way of all-round training for this world or the next.

The rich and wholesome influence of the summer camp at Calgary will be woven into the memories of these children, and afford them many a goodly day-dream when they are men and women.—H.

Nothing will cause another to lose confidence in you more readily than a broken promise. A promise should be a sacred duty, just as a debt must be paid.

Young People's and Bandsmen's Page

On Aug. 7, Staff-Captain White conducted the funeral service of Sister Mrs. Jean Wharton, Y.P.S.-M. of the No. 111 Corps, and a large crowd gathered to pay their last respects to our departed comrade. Sergeant Major C. Robson spoke of her faithful work in the Corps and of her untiring service as a Songster.

Captain Fox of No. VIII Corps sang with effect the solo, "Must I Empty-Handed Be?"

As the people viewed the remains for the last time the Band played "Promoted to Glory."

A procession formed up outside the hall, led by the Band, proceeded to Brookside cemetery, where another short service was held.

The late Mrs. Jean Wharton was 32 years of age, and was born in Salt-cook, Ayrshire, Scotland, where she came to Canada about eleven years ago, and was converted and enrolled as a soldier of the No. 111 Corps in June, 1913. Brother Wharton, the beloved husband, served overseas with His Majesty's Recruiting Sergeant Sister Mrs. Fanny stated that she had been in intimate terms with Sister Wharton for over six years. What impressed her

MY Dear Comrades,

I want to have another word with you about the Young People and Bandsmen's page. You will not easily tire of the subject. How interesting the Young People and Bandsmen are, especially your own children. Other people's are interesting, too, if you only get to know and care for them.

I am sure there is a precious mine of spiritual wealth for "The Army of the youngsters" if we can only get well at them.

I speak from experience. Have not my own children proved a blessing to multitudes? But perhaps someone will say, "Oh, yes, but they had remarkable advantages for them." Well, so they had, but their mother and father made those advantages. They got very little help from anyone else. It was our prayers and teaching and example, especially their mother's, that made them what they are.

Salvation of Children

Now, my comrades, we must go for the Salvation of the children, and go for it with all our hearts. God has given us eyes to see and hearts to feel the importance of the task. Save the young is not the easiest work in the world, whether they be our children or the children of strangers. But they are worth any amount of toil and tears and prayers and anything else that we can give. I know how much I miss! And I know how much I miss!

Someone has said that childhood is like a mirror, which reflects in after life the images of the past. Which is another way of putting Proverbs xlii. Children entrusted to Salvation Army Home may not lack any good thing in the way of all-round training for this world or the next.

The rich and wholesome influence of the summer camp at Calgary will be woven into the memories of these children, and afford them many a goodly day-dream when they are men and women.—H.

How to Go About It

The children will supply all our need. All we want to do is to be in the child's shoes. We can have "exceeding abundance above all that we see or hear from this source if we will only fight for it on God's plan.

2. But most of all we want just now more hearty and affectionate co-operation in the homes of the children themselves. Oh, mothers and fathers, and brothers and sisters, won't you hold us to this promise, God-giving task?

Our Founder and the Young People

There are, we are sure, many hundreds of Young People throughout Canada West who were never privileged to hear or come in contact with The Army's Founder, the late General William Booth.

In order that they might know what a deep and affectionate regard he had for them, it is our intention to publish several letters which give expression to this interest. These letters were written by the late General over twenty years ago. Our present General has inherited from his revered father this love for the Young People. Truly, he has them on his heart.

But how is this mighty, this overwhelmingly important work to be done? Let me tell you.

1. There is the Young People's work at the Corps. We want to do it better, over so much better than it has been done before. We will say nothing more about the failure of the past. We are only beginners. We are going to improve every day.

We want a larger number of earnest Company Guards.

We want more attention to the children of older workers. Oh, what valuable work we could do for the children of the Young People's Legion if we only had Officers who would grapple with them. Who to fight for it.

We want more intelligent teaching. The new Directory will help us. Its by common consent a remarkable little book. I want every child who comes under our wing to grow up well acquainted with the wonderful truth it contains. It will produce most precious fruit for time and for eternity.

Affectionate Co-operation

2. But most of all we want just now more hearty and affectionate co-operation in the homes of the children themselves. Oh, mothers and fathers, and brothers and sisters, won't you hold us to this promise, God-giving task?

1. And first, we want all our dear

most was the Spirit-Holder's brave fighting spirit and godly life.

She had a triumphant death, and a beautiful life up her face as she made her husband good-bye and said: "The fiery furnace; trust in God. Do you realize it?"

On Sunday evening, Aug. 8, a memorial service was conducted by Captain P. S. Roffice. A large crowd of people and also children gathered around the open-air and followed the march as it proceeded slowly to the hall.

Lieutenant Yalick, Brother Tacey and Secretary Mrs. Honeycock very feelingly of the unswerving service of our departed comrade. The Songsters sang one of our departed comrade's favorite songs, "I Am Walking Every Day with Jesus."

Adjutant Oske, at one time Commanding Officer of No. 111 Corps, spoke of the sweet and pure address on the Scripture, "Be not afraid; only believe." In speaking of our late comrade, the Captain said that he was a Y.P.S.-M., Guard Leader, Songster, or Company Guard, our sister looked infinitely for the Master, and he has most naturally gone to her reward.

Several of the City Corps were represented at the funeral and the Bandsmen from the different Corps of the City assisted the No. 111 Band.

May God console the bereaved—Correspondent.

More Faith Wanted

My dear soldiers, will you see to it that your home examples follow up what the children are taught in the Company meetings?

1. We want more faith in the possibility of the children's Salvation. We have not too much faith for the Salvation of growing people, but as for the children, there I feel a great deal of unbelief, not only among so-called religious people, but also among Salvationists.

2. We want more direct co-operation at home with the work done in the meetings. Parents must take more interest in the lessons of the children. Magnify their importance. Talk to them about what they have said, or done, or learned at the Corps. Let them sing their favorite songs and say their little pieces over again to you. Help them to understand the Directory. If any of you should fall short in ability for this, ask some comrades to assist you.

Hold On! Hold On!

Not only pray for them—that I am sure you regularly do—but pray with them, and let them pray for you and for themselves in your presence.

3. Discovering that they start for Heaven to hold on and not lose heart. If they have lost heart and faith, and gone back, calmly tell them God, encourage them by all means to start afresh. Cheer them up with the comfort I once gave to one of my former letters, namely, that people are not cut off from the mercy of God and sent to Hell for falling into sin. It is for remaining down when they have fallen and refusing to get up and go on again. And if they have backslided, tell them, from their General, that they get up and start afresh, and start this very week.

4. He who would build sublime and lasting work, to stand the test of time. Must inspiration draw from his fall and his love wisely, well, and much.

The secret words of the true master-touch.

—B. W. Wilcox.

Soldiers of Christ, arise,
And put your armor on,
Strong in the strength which God supplies
Through His eternal Son.

Praise ye the Lord, Hallelujah!
Hallelujah, praise ye the Lord!

Strong in the Lord of Hosts,
And in His mighty power,
Who in the strength of Jesus trusts
Is more than conqueror.

Leave no unguarded place,
No weakness of the soul;
Take every virtue, every grace,
—And fortify the whole.

That having all things done,
And all your conflict past,
You may overcome through Christ
And stand complete at last.

Though only a tried, faithful few,
The night of our Captain we'll conquer,

The King of Kings

"Our God whom we serve is able to deliver." The history of God's people is one of repeated story of deliverance. There was a day, many years ago, when the Sultan of Turkey declared that every Christian missionary would be banished on a certain day. The Christians met in earnest prayer, and one said: "The great Sultan of the Universe can change all this." He did. The Sultan of Turkey died on the very day he had named for the expulsion of the missionaries, and they were allowed to remain.

Commissioner Holds Councils

The Colonel's career claimed, among other things, that it was without doubt an inspiration, particularly to young officers. There were a number of outstanding traits in the Colonel's "make-up." Four of them were industry, perseverance, power of application, and tenacity. He was always on his feet and prepared to do the "drudgery." The officers with whom the Commissioner was personally acquainted and who had risen "to the top" had all been willing to do so, and all officers if they wish to succeed must be prepared to do likewise. Our Leader reminded the officers that there was no limit to their powers; that there was a line for every one if they would find it and keep strictly to it. The Colonel's career was the exemplification of industry and perseverance. "It is an inspiration to our faith and vision," continued the Commissioner. Both Colonel and Mrs. Turner expressed their gratitude and exhorted the officers to "stand by" Commissioner and Mrs. Edie, also their own successors, Lieut.-Colonel and Mrs. Morris.

A Country Awakening

Captain and Mrs. Smith and Brother Gordon visited. Early home where there was a sick woman who had been laid aside for a year and a half. The Captain read from the fifth chapter of James and then all prayed earnestly for God to touch the body. She said she believed that God had healed her and, praise the Lord, she got up right away. When the party left for home she was in the farmyard to wish them good-bye, and said she was going to attend the prayer meeting which the converts were having that evening, and give God the glory.

The secret of this revival was revealed at the last meeting. There was an old sister of God, Sister Mrs. Turner, who had been for a long time praying for God in some way to save the people in that neighborhood. She stood up well blessed and said, "God answers prayer." Captain and Mrs. Smith are leading us on to victory.—Corps Correspondent.
